ABOUT THE BOOK

This unique compendium highlights the theory of computation, particularly logic and automata theory. Special emphasis is on computer science applications including loop invariants, program correctness, logic programming and algorithmic proof techniques.

This innovative volume differs from standard textbooks, by building on concepts in a different order, using fewer theorems with simpler proofs. It has added many new examples, problems and answers. It can be used as an undergraduate text at most universities.

READERSHIP

Researchers, professionals, academics, and graduate students in theoretical computer science.

Preface

About the Author

Mathematical Preliminaries

Part 1: Logic for Computer Science:

- Propositional Logic
- Proofs by Deduction
- Predicate Logic
- Proofs with Predicates
- Program Verification

Part 2: Language Models for Computer Science:

- Language and Models
- Generating Regular Languages
- Finite Automata
- Context-Free Grammars
- Pushdown Automata and Parsing
- Turing Machines

Appendices:

- Logic Programming
- The AWK Language

Answers to Selected Problems Bibliography

ABOUT THE AUTHORS

Dana Richards, Associate Professor of Computer Science, GMU. PhD in CS from University of Illinois. Research in Algorithms has spanned many problem areas: information dissemination in networks, parallel algorithms, steganography and computational geometry. In addition to the field of Theory of Computation he has contributed to the field of recreational mathematics.

Henry Hamburger, Professor Emeritus of Computer Science, GMU. PhD in Computer and Communication Sciences from the University of Michigan. Research has been in various aspects of natural language processing. In addition to the field of Artificial Intelligence he has contributed to outreach programs, from an early involvement with the Peace Corps.
